History of La Grange County, Indiana.

La Grange County, Indiana, is in the northeastern part of the state, adjoining the State of Michigan on the north. The latitude of the court house at La Grange is about 41° 45' north, and about longitude 82° west from Washington.

The county contains about 103 congressional townships, or 388 sections, but for civil purposes is subdivided into eleven civil townships. Like all this region lying southeast of the great Lake Michigan, the formation belongs to the period designated by geologists as the "Drift period," and the surface presents great variety. Small prairies are found in the northern and eastern portions, variously designated as "Monguquing," "English," "Pretty," and "Brushy" prairies, and a portion of the celebrated "Haw Patch" extends into the southwestern part of the county. The northern part of the county is drained by the Pigeon River and Crooked Creek, which are tributaries of the St. Joseph, whose waters flow into Lake Michigan; the southern portion is drained by the Elkhardt River, also a tributary of the St. Joseph River.

Lakes are numerous, the most important being Oliver, Adams, Wymer, Atwood, Third, Sloan and Nanticoke in Johnson Township, Long, Turkey and Lake of the Woods in Milford; Dallas and McLaughlin in Clear Spring Township; Fish in Bloomfield; Wall and Cedar in Greenfield; Twiss in Lima; Sloan and Fish in Van Buren; Shiptonsville in Newbury, and Long Lake in Eden. The total area of water in the county is in the neighborhood of four thousand (4,000) acres, 1,500 of which are in Johnson Township.

This county, with the exception of the prairies mentioned, was like nearly all of Indiana, very heavily timbered with a great variety of deciduous trees.

The soil shows much variety. Clay, loam, sand and gravel, with immense deposits of peat, good brick clay, and, in many localities, extensive boulder drifts. Quarry stone, as well as sand, is not only sufficiently near the surface for practical purposes. Bag iron is found in various localities.

The county is remarkably well watered, and the facilities for raising wheat, corn, oats, grass, and nearly all varieties of apples, peaches, grapes, plums, cherries, and a great variety of berries, both cultivated and wild, are unsurpassed in this latitude.

Pigeon River, Crooked Creek, or Fawn River, and some other streams, afford considerable water power, but not on an extensive scale.

The Pigeon River is a very steady stream, varying but little through the year, being fed by numerous lakes in La Grange and Steuben Counties.

The earliest settlements, according to all accounts, in La Grange County, was made by Benjamin Blair, who brought his family from what is now Defiance County, Ohio, in August, 1828, and stopped for a short time in Pigeon Prairie, but removed to a location about one mile west of Lima Village in December, 1828.

The first saw (August, 1824) owned by George Doll and J. F. D. Craig, were both pre-empted by Mr. Blair and his son, F. A. Blair.

Moses Rice and his son, Lea Rice, came in 1829. Lea Rice kept a sort of trading house, where he exchanged whiskey and tobacco with the Indians for furs and peltries. The Rices did not stay very long. Arthur Burrows, a son-in-law of the Rices, and Wm. Thrall also settled in 1829. John Kroner settled on Pigeon Prairie, Michigan, in 1829, but removed to Lima about 1830. Leonard Fobes and John Jewett also settled in 1830. Jonathan Woodruff and Thomas Gale came very early, and one of the other of them opened the first regular store in Lima. In 1831 there arrived John B. Howe, who taught the first school in the county; J. T. Holms, who was the first clerk of the circuit court; James Whitaker, who is said to have built the first frame house; Samuel Hall, and Judge Newton and sons. Jason Thurston and Timothy Wallace were also very early in the county; and Nathan Fowler is said to have built a cabin on the north bank of Crooked Creek the same season that Mr. Blair settled. Daniel Sinclair was another early settler. The Reverend Christopher Cory settled in the Summer of 1832, and was the first permanent preacher.

Sketches of other early settlers will be found in the histories of the respective townships.

La Grange County was organized according to an act passed by the General Assembly of Indiana, and approved February 3, 1832.

Hon. Charles H. Test was the first presiding judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, his commission bearing date January 23, 1830. Luther Newton, and Ephraim Seely were associates. J. T. Holms was Clerk and Recorder. Nehemiah Colburn was first Sheriff, by appointment from the Governor. Jesse Harding was the first Coroner.

The first County Commissioners were Jacob Vandewater, Edmund Littlefield, and Arthur Burrows. Thomas Gale was appointed first County Treasurer.

The first meeting of the County Board was held May 14, 1832. At this meeting the county was divided into two (2) townships, Lima and Greenfield, the dividing line being the center of range ten (10). Benjamin Blair was appointed Assessor for Lima Township and Ephraim Seely for Greenfield.

The first Inspectors of Election were Leonard Fobes for Lima, and Jesse Chapman for Greenfield.

The first term of court was held October 22, 1832, at the house of Moses Rice, near Lima.

The names of the first Grand Jury are as follows: Thomas Gale, foreman, Ebenezer Fish, Ami Lawrence, Wm. Thrall, Isaac Wolgemut, Samuel Fish, Oliver Clouson, Jonathan Gardner, Benjamin Gale, Samuel Henderson, John Langdon, William Miller, John Anderson, Wm. A. McNeil, Jr., and Richard Gorthorp. Wm. J. Brown was Prosecuting Attorney, but, being sick, Samuel C. Sample was appointed in his place.

At the date of the first settlement in the county the Pottawatomie Indians occupied this region, and their principal village was located where the Village of Lima now stands. It was one of the largest Indian towns in the country, extending for several miles along the Pigeon River, and containing from 1,500 to 2,000 people. The sandy loam of the beautiful Monguquing Prairie afforded the Indians unusual facilities for the production of corn and what few vegetables they were familiar with, and it was no doubt a heavy capital for the red men. Deep wren trails from all directions centered there; game was abundant, and its natural advantages made it one of the most important points in all the west country of the Northwest.

The interpretation of "Monguquing" is said to be "Big Squaw Prairie," but the Indian names are so little understood that it is extremely uncertain what the correct meaning in English may be, but one thing is tolerably certain, the Indian language was very significant, and every proper name exceedingly appropriate, and no doubt this high sounding word had its characteristic application.

The post office at Lima was first called Monguquing, but changed afterwards to Lima, for convenience in speaking and writing.

The marsh lands of the county are quite extensive. The Townships of Bloomfield, Johnson, Milford, Van Buren, Clay, Clear Spring, Newbury and Eden abound in marshes, but many of them are in process of drainage, extensive ditches having been cut, particularly in the southwestern part of the county, and the time will come, no doubt, when a large part of what is now uncultivated lands will become the most valuable in the county. The Greenfield townships are comparatively free of marsh land, and are well improved and flourishing agricultural districts, perhaps the most wealthy portion of the county.

In common with the entire North, La Grange County shared in the terrible excitement consequent upon the breaking out of the slaveholders' rebellion in 1861.

The first call for a meeting to raise volunteers in the county was made by J. H. Hall, at Lima, April 18, 1861, but the first actual meeting, and the first enrollment were at La Grange, April 20, 1861. Dr. F. H. Rerick drew up the first company roll. Among the men who figured prominently at the first meeting at La Grange were John Kroner, N. P. Osborne, M. P. Sprague, C. O. Myers, A. B. Keeney, Andrew Ellison, Wm. S. Boyd, A. S. Case, Marley Crook, F. P. Griffith, Hon. Robt. Farett, and Jas. M. Flagg.

Enthusiastic meetings were also held at Lima, Wolcottville, and various other places, nearly simultaneously, in which all the leading men of the county took part. Prominent among the men who raised, drilled, and led men into the field were Major W. B. Bingham, who had seen service in Mexico, and who as the captain, was acquainted with military tactics in the vicinity of La Grange; Capt. Wm. Roy, who had lately returned from five years' service in the regular army; Geo. A. Lane, C. M. Burlingame, Dr. J. H. Rerick, who went out as Assistant Surgeon of the 44th Indiana Infantry, and was promoted Surgeon, October 23, 1863; Capt. Wm. Dawson, Indianist, who was wounded at Shiloh, and taken prisoner at Jonesboro, Georgia, in 1864; Capt. Joseph H. Danvers, who was wounded at Stone River, and subsequently died of his wound; Capt. Jacob Newman, severely wounded at Shiloh; Hon. Robert Farett, who rose to the rank of Major in the 100th Regiment, and was killed by the fall of a tree while in the service; Capt. Webster, who took out a company in the 88th Regiment; Capt. J. H. Hall, who did efficient service as a scout, and many others.

We have not been able to ascertain the names of the different regiments, batteries, and organizations with which men from La Grange County were connected, but their record is like that of the whole Northwest, most glorious.

The county seat was located at Lima upon the organization of the county, where it remained until 1844, when it was removed to La Grange, which is in the geographical center of the county.

The only railway at present in the county is the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway, passing very nearly through the center of the county, from north to south. The road does quite an extensive business in the transportation of lumber, salt, plaster, etc., and its passenger traffic is rapidly increasing since the completion of the road to Traverse City and Mackinac. The Canada Southern Railway has been surveyed through the south part of the county, passing through South Milford and Wolcottville, and will probably be put in operation soon. This road has the lightest grades of any in the United States, the maximum being only 15 feet per mile.

We have not been able to obtain an accurate survey of this route. Several lines have been run, but no definite one decided upon.

The principal towns and villages are La Grange, the county seat, Lima, Wolcottville, Ontario, Union Mills, Van Buren, Springfield, Lexington and South Milford.

Descriptions and statistics of the different villages will be found in the histories of their respective townships.

There are at present two newspapers published in the county, the La Grange Standard, at the county seat, and the Register, at Wolcottville, the latter lately established.

The Standard is very ably conducted, and has a very good circulation. The religious and educational advantages of the county are good.

A very peculiar class of people, calling themselves "Antish" or "Omish," inhabit the southwestern portion of the county, mostly found in Newbury and Eden. They are somewhat like the Quakers and Dunkards. They do not believe in war, litigation or politics, and ignore scrupulously costly apparel and gaudy colors. They believe, however, in gathering together all of Uncle Sam's greenbacks which they can reach, and undersand thoroughly how to make money. They are more clannish and exclusive than either the Quakers or Dunkards, and mix very little with the busy world around them. They are good farmers generally, and own some of the best lands in the county.

Northern Indiana, like most newly settled countries, was early infested by a gang of lawless horse thieves and counterfeiters, who were so strong, and became so audacious in their nefarious transactions as to require some-thing more available than the common process of law to reach them. The matter was eventually taken up and considered by the General Assembly of the State, and finally an act was passed and approved March 9, 1852, authorizing the formation of companies for the special purpose of ferreting out and breaking up these pests upon society. The first organization under the act was effected in Milford Township, LaGrange County, at the Bullock School House, in September, 1850. Similar organizations were determined in various parts of Noble and La Grange Counties, and a perfect war was commenced against the blither end. One man, Gregory McDougale, was convicted and executed at Ligonier, January 26, 1855; many were sent to prison, and others fled the country, until the entire business was broken up, and the lives and property of citizens rendered secure. A short but interesting sketch of some of the proceedings will be found in the township histories of Springfield and Milford, to which we refer our readers.

We have obtained our information regarding the early settlement of the county from many of the old settlers now remaining as we could conveniently taking pains to see them in all parts of the county, and are under obligations to them for information given and favors extended.

To the county officers we are also indebted for facilities afforded us in the examination of records, and for much valuable information which we could not obtain elsewhere.

The surveying and platting of townships and villages has been a work of exceeding difficulty, but we believe the Atlas will be found very accurate, and shown, as for instance, the region west of Wolcottville, in Johnson and Clear Spring Townships, which on all previous maps has been a "terra incognita," and we trust the work will be judged by its general fidelity and accuracy.

To any who are familiar with the difficulty of reconciling the discrepancies in the opinions of "old settlers," it is not necessary to make apologies for statements which do not always agree with everybody's recollections.

LA GRANGE.

La Grange village was not settled as early as many other points in the county. The first actual settler, as claimed by himself and generally admitted, was C. B. Holmes who settled, according to his own statement, in 1844. He first settled in Lima in 1842.

Mr. Holmes was first postmaster at La Grange, opened the first mercantile establishment, and was also the first justice of the peace. [Note.—We had expected some minutes of Mr. Holmes' recollections of early incidents connected with the settlers of Lima and La Grange, but have not received them.]

Andrew Ellison settled on English Prairie in 1836, but removed to La Grange in 1842, where he has been in practice of law ever since.

Wm. S. Boyd came also in the Spring of 1844. He erected a building on the corner where Brown's Hotel stands, 100 feet long, and opened a hotel and store, which he conducted for ten years. He owned a farm, and furnished supplies for his hotel from his own land. He kept a general assortment — dry goods, drugs and medicines, hardware, etc., etc. Mr. E. built a dam on Fly Creek, in 1845, and put up a saw-mill, which was burned and rebuilt. He also erected a grist mill in 1853-4, "without a cent of money," as he says, and ran it about fifteen years. He was eight years a director of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway, when he resigned, and Andrew Ellison, who had at first opposed the construction of the road, was appointed in his place.

Mr. Boyd can tell some interesting stories of the great "Regulator" days. John F. Jones settled at Lima in 1844, as a Methodist preacher. He removed to La Grange in 1849, and went into the mercantile business. John Kynson, now a resident of La Grange Village, settled on section 24, in Clay Township, adjoining the village, in the Spring of 1856. He purchased his land, October, 1855.

La Grange was made the county seat in 1844. It has had a very steady and healthy growth, and is a place of large business, being in the midst of a good grain country, and having the best facilities in the county for handling and shipping country products. It contains about fifteen hundred (1,500) inhabitants, and has fire churches, one school, one first-class hotel, perhaps as good as any town of its size in the county can boast, two banks, a steam grist mill, several steam saw-mills, a large foundry and machine shop, two carriage factories, about twenty-five to thirty stores of various kinds, and the usual variety of mechanics. The La Grange Standard, a very ably conducted provincial journal, is also published here.

The village, although situated among a very considerable stream or body of water, is nevertheless quite picturesquely located on a series of elevations, scarcely approaching the dignity of hills, yet sufficiently elevated to give a charm to the landscape and prevent monotony. Fly Creek, formerly a much more considerable stream than at present, passes through the village. There are a large number of cozy and beautiful homes and cottages in and around La Grange, prominent among which we may mention those of Andrew Elgin, S. K. Ruck, C. B. Holmes, Dr. Cutting, and those of Messrs. Selby, Platt, McCord, Merritt, and others. It is a very healthy locality, the water being excellent, and the country immediately around being dry and rolling.

The original town plat was laid out June 18, 1836, by Reuben J. Dawson, William F. Beatty, George F. Whitaker, and James McConnell.

BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP.

Bloomfield is the most populous township in the county. It has great variety of surface and contains a large number of fine and well-cultivated farms. It is remarkable for the number of water-powers which have been improved and used, on the two branches of Fly Creek, there being no less than seven within the township.

The southern and central portions are rolling and sometimes hilly, while the northern portions are level and sandy, with a large amount of marsh along Pigeon River and Fly Creek. There are three lakes wholly or in part in this township, Fly Lake, Sloan Lake, and Cline Lake.

Among the earliest settlers were Z. L. Senhouser, about 1834, Jacob Hoagland, J. D. Crandell, Hiram Jacobs, and Christian Roop, in 1836; Joseph Richards and Curtis T. Harding, in 1837; Jacob Tordick and F. M. Price, in 1838; Daniel Sargent, John Peterson, Herckiah Hoard, and John Patton, at different periods. Andrew Kirkberry settled about the same time as Z. L. Senhouser, 1834.

The "La Grange Collegiate Institute" is situated in this township, on section 4, just south of the village of Ontario, in Lima Township.

LIMA TOWNSHIP.

This is the oldest settled township in the county, the first settlement being made by Benjamin Blair and family in December, 1828, on the farm now owned by George Dull, in section 26, one mile east of Lima Village. The farm owned by J. F. D. Craig was also pre-empted by Mr. Blair, and his son, F. A. Blair. Messrs Rice and his son, Isaac, Arthur Harrows, William Thrall, and the Goddard family, settled in 1829; John Kromer, Emanuel Eshes, and John Jones, about 1830. Among other early settlers are one Tucker, 1831-2; J. L. Kinney, 1832-3; Hugh Smith, 1833; John Carey and John Sims, in 1835, together with Harvey Wood; Abner Fleming and Thomas J. Spaulding, in 1837, and D. W. Cole, in 1840. J. C. Kinney purchased the Lima Grist-Mill the year before he settled, and in 1834 or 5 went to Ontario, and in company with a Mr. Hubbard built a dam on Pigeon River and erected a saw-mill. He soon after sold the property to Nathan Jones, who put up a grist-mill in addition. The land now owned by Mr. Kinney's son, J. C. Kinney, just west of Lima, was the first land deeded in the county.

On the present site of Lima Village once stood an extensive and populous Indian town, extending several miles along the Pigeon River, which is the best stream in the county, affording considerable power. Lima contains four churches, two hotels, a wind-mill manufactory, and several other factories of more or less note, together with the usual complement of stores, etc. A fine school building, the best in the county, is being erected, a view of which appears in this Atlas.

The village of Ontario, situated in the southeast part of the township, was laid out and organized by Nathan Jones, in 1836. Charles Doolittle located here in 1837, just south of the village in Bloomfield Township, stands the "La Grange Collegiate Institute," established some thirty-five or thirty-six years ago, and at present under the management of Rufus Patch, who came here in 1844.

Lima Township contains "Monguquinn Prairie," the soil of which is distinctly different from that of the "oak openings" and other lands surrounding it. A number of beautiful lakes are also located in this township, among which may be mentioned Twin Lake, one and a half miles east of Lima, and Cedar Lake, lying partly in Lima and partly in Greenfield Townships. Fawn River, or Crooked Creek, and Pigeon River, drain what marshes there are in the township. In proportion to population, this is perhaps the wealthiest township in the county.

The Village of Lima was laid out October 22, 1834, by Moses and Isaac Rice. John Kromer, surveyor.

JOHNSON TOWNSHIP.

Among the earliest settlers in Johnson Township were Thomas Oliver on section 16, in 1833, the first settler between Wright's Corners and La Grange. At that date the only means of travel was by Indian trails. Hiram Gardner came in the Spring of 1836. He married with Mr. Oliver for some time after he arrived. Z. and A. P. Case and Robert Meeker and three sons, in 1836.

The first actual settler at Wright's Corners, and possibly in the township, was Levi Wright, who came about 1834. O. P. Granger settled at Lima in 1834, removed to Noble County in 1850, bought a farm in La Grange County and removed there in 1856. N. J. Beech, Wm. Wert, F. W. Druggo, John McKibbin, Thomas Koon, Benjamin Newman, Philip Horner, John Carey, Jacob Pontus, and William and Samuel Holman, were early settlers, arriving at different periods from 1837 to 1850. Wm. Dickinson, S. K. Pierce and J. F. Whitmer, also settled early.

This township contains the greatest amount of water of any in the county. The principal lakes are Oliver, containing about 400 acres; Adams, about 300 acres; Whitmer, Adams, and "Olin," somewhat smaller, and Sloan, Olin, and Nauvoo Lakes.

Some of these lakes are very fine and clear, particularly Oliver and Adams, which have beautiful sandy beaches and deep blue water. All of them abound in fish, and are great places of resort for sportsmen in the game and fishing season. These lakes form the headwaters of the north branch of the Elk River.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway runs through this township. A small station called Valentine is located on sections 8 and 9. At this point are post-office, store, steam mill, and a school, and there is also the finest farming region in the township surrounding it, Messrs. Gardner, Clington, and McGibben, having probably as good farms as any in the county.

WOLCOTTVILLE.

The promising village of Wolcottville is situated on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railway at the extreme north side of the township and the county, in fact several villages to the place are in Noble County. The main north branch of the Elk River passes through the place, affording considerable water-power.

Philo Taylor was one of the first settlers, arriving in February, 1837. He owned the water-power, but sold to George Wolcott, who came in June, 1837. Mr. Wolcott built and operated at different periods a saw-mill, grist-mill, saw-mill, and distillery. Dr. L. Barker settled at Northport, in Noble County, in 1838. He erected a saw-mill where Hamilton's mill now stands, about 1842. Peter Lamson, Odias Wright, Henry Nichols, and Nelson Nichols, were among the early settlers.

The proposed Canada Southern and Chicago Railway has been surveyed through this place, which, in time, will give it the best shipping facilities of any place in the county. The village contains about 300 people, and is improving considerably. There are two churches (Methodist and Baptist), six or seven stores, two hotels, a large flour and grist-mill, a saw-mill, a couple of factories for the manufacture of rakes and handles, an iron foundry, carriage and blacksmith shops, and a variety of artisans and mechanics.

A very flourishing seminary was put in operation some years ago, which obtained a wide-spread reputation, and turned out a goodly number of competent teachers. The free-school system has, however, gradually taken the place of private enterprise, and the seminary is not now in operation.

VAN BUREN TOWNSHIP.

The first settlement of which we have any record was made in this township by Peter Houtman and Nehemiah Colborn, on sections 17 and 18, range 9, in 1829. Among other early ones are Nathaniel Calahan, Amos Lawrence, Asa and John Olney. The land in this township came into market the first Monday in June, 1851, and during the same month Nathaniel Calahan, Obadiah and John Lawrence each entered eighty acres in sections 12 and 18, range 9. The first lot in the township was that of Sylvanus Olney, February 20, 1852. Hilda Lawrence was born December 22 of same year. The first sermon was preached sometime in July, 1852, by Rev. Christopher Cory, at the residence of Nathaniel Calahan, now owned by his son, Miles Calahan. A school-house was built on this farm, and in the Summer of 1856 the first school was taught by Clarissa Manger. During the Summer of 1854, Sheelton Martin & Brothers put up a saw-mill at Van Buren Village, on Pigeon River, and the following year erected a grist-mill. These were the first mills put up in the township. Sometime in 1856, Hauling & Johnson built a saw-mill on Buck Creek, and a Mr. Pierce put up a blacksmith shop at Van Buren the same year. The Village of Van Buren was laid out in 1856, surveyed by Delavan Martin. The first justice of the peace was one Pierce, the same man that put up the first blacksmith shop. A hotel had been erected by J. D. Brooks, and a cooper-shop by H. R. Ostrander; also a wagon shop by one Carey. C. C. Burt was a carpenter and joiner. The first physician was Sidney Cobb, who died after residing here a year or two. William Fox succeeded him, and George and James Fox carried on a shoe-shop. The mill property passed into the hands of John Dalton, and finally were purchased by George Narbar, who is at present operating them. The old hotel was a few years since destroyed. The village contains one church, a good two-story school-building, and two stores owned by William Diekes and John Morrison. There are also two physicians—W. B. Grubb and A. Toms. James Hagerty settled here in 1856, and is the oldest living settler in the village. The township is well watered by Fawn River, or Crooked Creek, and Pigeon River, with their tributaries. Marshes are numerous and extensive, one of them, Big Marsh, having considerable deposits of bag iron. There are also a number of lakes, Stone Lake, in the northern portion of the township, being one of the most beautiful in the county.

CLEAR SPRING TOWNSHIP.

The greater portion of this township is thickly settled. As will be seen by reference to the map, there is considerable marsh in the eastern and northwestern portions of the township, causing quite an area of land to remain unimproved, and being, except in very dry seasons, when grass is out on them, almost worthless. A number of marshy lakes also abound, principally along the eastern boundary, which feed one branch of the Elk River, which is here a very sluggish, dirty stream. A mill pond on the south line of the township causes considerable overflow, and renders still more land useless.

The first man who entered land in this township was Anthony Nelson, who came from Ohio in 1850 and located first in Elk River County, and finally removed to La Grange County, where he had entered three eighty-acre lots in 1852. David Rogers, a botanical physician from Geneva, N.Y., was probably the next settler, as he came into the township in 1853, and entered seven eighty-acre lots. Charles Roy came with his family from about the same locality in 1856, making the trip in twenty-one days, fifteen days of the time being rainy and the roads in terrible condition. This township was named from a very fine, large spring on Mr. Roy's place, which was famous among the Indians and backwoodsmen half a century ago and more. There is a number of other very fine springs on Mr. Roy's place, which have broken out during violent thunder storms and never been dry since. John S. Gibson settled on section 33 in 1853. E. Schlemmerhorn came to the county in 1856, and entered land in June of that year on section 33 in Clay Township. Has lived on present location, section 4, Clear Spring Township, since 1840. Richard Green located on section 35, in 1844, on land now owned by William Wemple. Nicholas Low was also an early settler. Hanley Peck bought land in 1838, and moved on it in 1846. Orvin Kent was perhaps in this portion of the county as early as any one, but did not actually settle until after the others we have mentioned.

GREENFIELD TOWNSHIP.

Nest to Lima Township, this is the wealthiest, perhaps, in the county. It contains Pretty and English Prairies, and is taken altogether, a fine farming township, although there are a few marshes draining into Fawn River on the northeast, and Pigeon River on the southwest. The township contains the Village of Lexington, laid out about 1835 by Abraham Brower and a man named Bull. The first settler in the township was William Miller, who located on section 28, range 10, in 1859. John Anderson and three sons and Samuel Bradford settled in 1850. Jacob Miller and seven sons settled in the Spring of 1851. Isaac Francis came to the county about 1856, and speaks of hauling wheat to Fort Wayne, White Pigeon, Hillsdale and Toledo—the latter trip taking ten days—and selling it at from 50 to 62½ cents per bushel. The first couple married were Samuel Gaverthorpe and Ellen Wolgast, some time in 1850. The first death was that of Mrs. Gaverthorpe. A post-office was established about 1856 at Lexington, and kept in a store put up the year before, by Abraham Brower and Peter Bliss. The first post-office in the county was probably kept by one Vance, on a farm now owned by Elijah Anderson, about 1832. It was soon removed to the farm now owned by C. G. Nichols, and kept by Ephraim Seely for some time, and was finally removed to Monguquinn, or Union Mills, in Springfield Township, where it has since been kept up. The first election in the township was held in 1851. La Grange County was at that time a part of Elk River County, and the voters were called on to go away to Goshen and act as jurymen, but laws were different then, and nobody ever went.

On the second Tuesday in October, 1851, an election was held for state legislators, which was the first election held in the county. The issue was over the route of the Wabash and Erie Canal; one route being surveyed through this county and on west, by way of Goshen, through to Lake Michigan, and another by way of Fort Wayne southwest along the Wabash River. The candidates were one Hanna of Fort Wayne, and Crawford of Goshen, and on the one elected depended the canal route. This was before land in this county had been surveyed (which was not done till 1852, the land coming into market the Fall of the same year), and the settlers were fearful that if the canal went through on the north route it would put the price of land beyond their means of paying for it, and so everybody voted for Hanna who, of course, was elected, and the canal was dug on the Wabash route.

NEWBURY TOWNSHIP.

Newbury Township was surveyed in 1850. We have not been able to obtain the name of the first settler. Among the earliest were Almon Lawrence, Alexander Porter, Joseph Keese, Amos Davis, Franklin Goodson, Messrs. Shrake and Styles, the Nelson and Cotton families, George Lotterer, Mr. Hornly, Truman Wilkison, E. Green, George Hill, and Messrs. Bery and Woodbridge.

The first election was held at the house of Truman Wilkison, on section 17, April 3, 1857. Whole number of voters, 15. Amos Davis was elected Justice of the Peace; Willard Cotton, Constable; Elijah West, Inspector; Edick Green, Supervisor; George Lotterer and Elijah West, Overseers of Poor; Franklin Goodson and George Hill, Road Viewers.

The township was named on the day of this election. The first death was Mary Shrake, June, 1857. The Rev. Mr. Brown of Middlebury, Elk River County, was one of the first preachers in the county.

The first school building was erected in 1857, on section 32. There are three houses for religious worship in the township. In 1853 Andrews and West erected a saw-mill on section 3, the first frame building in the township.

The next frame was a barn by F. Goodnow, on section 7. Amos Davis built a mill on section 19 in 1858. There are five saw-mills in the township—three clean and two water power.

There are three lakes wholly within the township, Shipchewana, Cotton, and Hoof's, and two others partly, Cass and Mud Lakes.

The township contains a large amount of marsh. The stream called Little Elk River rises in Clear Spring Township and passes through this township in a northerly direction, into Elk River County.

A post-office called Fashion is located on section 21.

MILFORD TOWNSHIP.

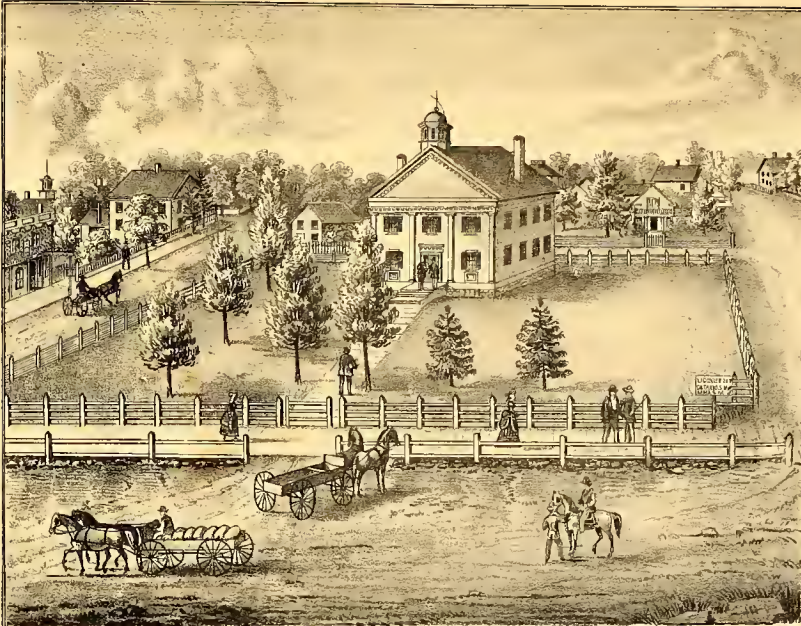

In 1853, Jacob Butts settled in this township and built him a log house on Section 4. About the same time Richard Rice came and camped on Section 2, and remained one winter. Abner Goodsell, Esq., now living in Section 4, came in with his father, Capt. Styles Goodsell, and settled in that section in 1855. In that year Abner Goodsell and Jacob Butts erected a log school house at Mind Corners, in Section 3. The school was taught by Orris Danks.

The township was organized in 1857 by the election of a Town Board of five officers.

Cot. Wm. Cochran was chosen Inspector; Capt. Styles Goodsell and Capt. Sylvanus Hatch were elected Judges; and Wm. B. Dunn and Wm. Scarls, Clerks.

There were some three voters left when the board were selected. Charles Turner was unanimously elected as the first Justice, and Colonel Cochran was the first supervisor.

The Township of Springfield was organized first, and Milford was under the direction of the Supervisors of that town up to the time of their own township organization.

HISTORY OF LA GRANGE COUNTY—

CONCLUDED.

The first couple married in the township was Geo. Thompson and Mariae Butts, by Elder Colton, who was the first preacher. Mr. Melissa Barry was probably the first white person to depart this life among the settlers. Mrs. Fitch gave birth to the first white child in 1836, which soon after died.

Of Crookland built the first saw-mill, on the outlet of Long Lake, near the place where the first was located, and when the emigrants gathered at the "Council" to organize the township they named it from the locality, and called it Mill Pond, or Wilford.

To Wilford belongs the credit of organizing the first company of Regulators, to raid La Grange and the adjoining counties of the notorious counterfeiters, thieves and blacklegs who had congregated in the section in such vast numbers as to almost paralyze the growth of the country, and render the "arm of the law" powerless to reach the criminals.

In 1852, the Legislature passed "An act to authorize the formation of companies for the detection and apprehension of lawless thieves and other felons, and defining their powers." September 12, 1856, the movement was organized at a meeting held at the Bullock school-house, on Section 18. The original records show that J. I. Bullock, Alanson Hill, Orrin Fuller, Zopher C. Day, Geo. W. James, A. P. Case, Isaac Hill, William Hill, Ebenezer Hill, Isaac Carpenter, Ures. Cochran, Philip Helmer, Stephen Shoniman and John Shearman were present. J. I. Bullock was chosen President, and A. Hill, Vice President. Orrin Fuller was appointed Secretary, and directed to draft a constitution, which was adopted September 28, 1856.

Their mode of proceeding was novel and effective. Some one would lodge a complaint that they had lost certain property. A committee was appointed to investigate the charges which might be made, and when sufficient evidence was gathered to point to the criminal, the "Riders" were instructed to bring him in for examination, and what he stated was taken down by the secretary, and all that should implicate others in that or any other transaction was recorded. If not convincing enough, he was kept by the regulators, and not allowed to see his friends, and after a time was again brought in to see if he had withdrawn. In this way a due was returned to others, which was followed up by their arrest, and soon in this way until many of the gang were arrested and placed in prison. One man, having by the regulators of this and other counties. One was supposed to have perished in a building fired by him. Another sentenced by prison, and one was found drowned in the canal in Indianapolis, where he had been taken as a prisoner, the whole ending in the imprisonment or dispersion of the whole gang, and the people of Northern Indiana breathed easier and slept in peace.

HISTORY OF CLAY TOWNSHIP

Mr. John Eysen was one of the first settlers in this township. He purchased land on Section 24, in October, 1835, and settled on it in the Spring of 1836. Among the early settlers were John Nelson, Obadiah Lawrence, M. P. Sprague, Truman Gilbert, Wm. Wyclor, Thomas Hildland, Wm. Wilson, Levi Knott, Salas Latta, Sheldrick Carey, Erastus Clark, John Rollins and a Mr. Woodford.

Ephraim Rollins built the first blacksmith shop in the township. It stood on the bank of Buck Lake. In 1837 or 1838, George Wood built a saw-mill on Buck Creek, Section 15. Since that time a great mill has been built. Messrs. Fitch, Fisher & Lamp are the present (Aug. 1, 1874) owners of the property. There is a steam saw-mill, owned by S. M. Conley, on Section 1, and another on Section 3, owned by C. Plank, and still another on Section 13, owned by Price A. Kennedy.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clark was the mother of the first child born in the township. The second child was a daughter of John and Charlotte Benson, born March 17, 1837. Some authorities claim that Mrs. Montgomery gave birth to triplets in the Fall of 1836, making them the first born in the township. At any rate, it seems to have been a very prolific time.

The first school buildings erected were on Sections 18 and 23, but it is uncertain which took precedence. Samantha Overacker taught the first school on Section 18, and Elizabeth Clark the one on Section 23.

There are no church buildings in the township, but religious meetings are held in the school buildings.

This township was originally surveyed in 1829.

Clay Township contains a large amount of marsh lands, the total amounting to several thousand acres.

HISTORY OF EDEN TOWNSHIP

As near as can be ascertained, this township was first settled in the Winter of 1831-2, by William McConnell, who located on Section 36. A few months later, Robert Latta settled on Section 28. Quite a number moved about the same time from Lillbott County, and the Ham Prich, among whom were Prader, Colston, Newkome, Nelson, Dimpsey and Pink. Absarone settled on Section 26 in 1835. James Taylor on Section 23 in 1836. Harry Colburn on Section 13 in the Spring of 1837.

This and Northstar Township were settled by a religious sect who are called "Unites," who believe in extreme simplicity of dress and manners, who eschew politics, war (for any cause), and all gaudy or showy colors. They are generally good farmers, and have the locality, superlatively developed, of accumulating "milk here" and "real estate."

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP

Previous to 1832, the Potawatamie Indians were the only occupants of Springfield Township except a few "squatters" at what was afterwards called Union Mills, and two or three in the valley of Turkey Creek. The Indians were removed by the Government in 1837. The whites entertained great fears that they would join Black Hawk, previous to his being defeated in 1832, which put an end to their alarm.

The Government survey of Springfield Township was completed in the Spring of 1832, and the land was offered for sale in October of the same year.

Benjamin Jones and John B. Clark attended that sale, and entered the first farms ever owned by white men in the town.

The water power, afterward known as Union Mills, at the confluence of Pigeon River and Turkey Creek (from the union of which it took its name), was purchased by Brannell at the same time. Others, among whom were Judge Wm. S. Prentiss, entered land soon afterward, in the Fall of 1832, and in the Winter and Spring of 1833; and in April or May of that year, John B. Clark, Jesse Huntsman, Joseph Fos and Mrs. brother Benjamin, William Seaborn and Wm. S. Prentiss met in a log cabin, built and abandoned by Samuel Goodnow, agreed that the name of the township should be Springfield; drew up and sent to the County Commissioners a petition to that effect, which was granted, and a record thereof made establishing the civil township six miles square, being the same territory as the Congressional Township 37 North, Range 11 East.

The first and only "grist mill" was built in the Fall of 1831 and Spring of 1832 at the point called Union Mills, by Brannell, who sold it a year or two later to Drusus Nichols, who retained possession for a number of years, making many improvements at that point, where the largest village in the township was built up. George Helmer built the first saw-mill in this place in 1832, and another was put in operation in 1833, in Section 12, higher up on Turkey Creek; and still another further up the creek, in Section 34, by Judge Prentiss, in 1838.

The first school-house in the town was built of logs, near the north end of Brady Prairie, on Section 20, and the first school was taught by Otis Shearman, in 1835; the second by Heler Wheeler, in a log cabin, near the residence of J. B. Clark, in Section 28.

In 1870, there were nine good school-houses in the town, with a good attendance of scholars, and a population of about 1,200.

Benjamin B. Waterhouse and others built the first Methodist church, called Brady Chapel, in 1842, in the southwest corner of Section 33; and John Lackey and others erected the second Methodist—or Springfield Church—on Section 26, in 1848.

A few Presbyterians and Baptists settled in the town, but never were strong enough to build a church.

In 1838, a number of Liberalists, among whom were Benj. Jones, Joseph Fos, Judge Wm. S. Prentiss, Jesse Huntsman and Harry Olmstead, built the Free Hall, on Section 28, for liberal lectures and free discussion on religious, political and scientific subjects; and (says Judge Prentiss in his "Annals") during several years, up to this time, June, 1850, lectures on Spiritualism have been delivered more frequently than on any other subject.

In 1843, a society, on the plan of Charles Fourier, styled the LaGrange Phalanx, was formed, and rented building, on Benj. Jones' farm. The principal stockholders were Benj. Jones, Jesse Huntsman, Wm. S. Prentiss, Margaret Wyle and Harry Olmstead. Families who before had been isolated, and found it difficult to educate their children, if they failed to carry out successfully the plan of Fourier, succeeded in maintaining for three years the best school in the vicinity, where their children received the best part of their education. The society was amicably dissolved in 1847, and the property fairly distributed.

During the Rebellion, Springfield was as patriotic as any town in LaGrange County, and furnished her full quota of troops.

From the "old settlers" we get two opinions as to the first postmaster, and shall give both, leaving it to those who can to decide which is correct. From one source we learn that one O'Barrell was connected with Brannell in erecting the grist mill at Union Mills, and in 1833, when the post-office was established there, was the first postmaster; and that in the same year the post-office at Union was established. From another we are told the first post-office was established on Mongopung Prairie—now Lima—with Ephraim Seely postmaster; that on his removing to Springfield he took the post-office along with him, and kept it for a while at his house in Section 4, and when Drusus Nichols purchased the mill and erected his store, he became postmaster—the office still retaining the name of Mongopung Prairie, until, quite recently, it has been changed to Mungo.

Jane Clark, daughter of John B. Clark, was the first white child born in the township, June 4, 1831. Mary Prentiss was the second, born Oct. 16, 1833.

Judge Wm. S. Prentiss was married to Jane Mary Clark, Dec. 22, 1852, by Judge Ephraim Seely.

Isidore Chase was the first preacher in the township.

An Indian trader named Drusus was probably the first white person that died in this township. Jesse Huntsman lost two children by scarlet fever shortly after.

Ancient mounds are found in this township, and the tooth of a mastodon, of very large size, was unearthed on the Prentiss farm, in the Valley of Turkey Creek. It was found on a bed of gravel, some twenty inches only from the surface.
